

Atlas of Lake Sturgeon Waters in Ontario

February 2002

Preface

This document provides a listing of Ontario waters currently known to contain lake sturgeon (Acipenser fulvescens). Information for this listing has been derived from a variety of sources including the provincial fisheries database of lake and streams surveys (AHIS) and fisheries assessment projects (FISHNET). Several publications and checklists were also reviewed (see References). A draft listing of waterbodies containing lake sturgeon was also reviewed by field biologists across the province to confirm the current status and make any revisions necessary.

A total of 229 waterbodies were identified during this exercise (Table 1). Waterbodies range in size from streams to individual Great Lakes. There has been no attempt made to determine the relative abundance of sturgeon in any of the waterbodies listed. In some cases waters may only be frequented during the spawning season or used as migration routes at specific times of the year.

Table 1. Ontario waterbodies containing lake sturgeon. Information has been summarized in terms the Ministry of Natural Resources district in which the waterbody is located.

Some rivers (e.g., Albany, Attawapiskat, etc.) have been listed under more than one MNR district since the distribution of sturgeon encompasses more than one administrative jurisdiction. In these instances, location information (e.g., latitude and longitude) will differ. These waters have only been enumerated once for the purpose of compiling Table 1, however.

There are undoubtedly waters containing sturgeon which have been missed or which have yet to be inventoried. This atlas should be kept updated as new information becomes available.
